Please join us for the US premier of this remarkable exhibition. Between 2000-2008, Centropa interviewed 1,200 Holocaust survivors in fifteen European countries. Centropa never used video nor did it focus on the Holocaust. Instead, Centropa digitized 22,000 family photos, while asking its elderly respondents to share their stories of how their families lived, not only how they perished.

In the Czech Republic, Centropa interviewed seventy elderly Jews and digitized a thousand old photos. This exhibition of seventy panels is filled with oversized photos and the stories that go with them: some heartwarming, many heartbreaking. Visit www.centropa.org/czech to find the entire exhibition online, as well as films made from old photos, historical essays and even links to easy-to-make Bohemian Jewish recipes.
